Cheryl Temple

Cheryl has chosen to study Forensic Psychology after having completed a full Access course in 2011

I'm now starting my first year at uni. I'm 40yrs old, a single parent and worked part time throughout the course which took me two years to complete.

I studied English Language, Psychology and Sociology and enjoyed them all. The tutors are excellent and give you good feedback and are extremely helpful if there's anything that you are struggling with. English was my favourite subject. I will say to anyone who does not like having to remember facts and statistics do not take Sociology as there is an awful lot of written work involved, however the tutor is brilliant, she makes sure that you understand everything and is brilliant at giving you revision skills that suit you best which is an advantage if you are going onto university. Psychology was very interesting though an awful lot of terminology is used and reading some of the text books can be very hard going. The careers advisors at QE were excellent.

I made some very good friends whilst at QE who I am still in touch with now. We meet up for coffee and have nights out. Studying with younger people can also be fun and they can be very helpful. I would urge anyone thinking of enrolling at QE to do it as it might just change your life as it did mine.
