Mark Price

Mark is 22 and a self employed parcel courier. He has used Access to move onto a part time degree in Business Management.

Before taking my access course I had a full time job, and although I was happy in my job I felt that that I could do more with the spare time I had on the evenings as I was eager to boost my education.

So after seeing courses advertised in the local paper I enrolled for Business Studies on my first year and then English Language and Law in my second year. I felt that the courses were fun and challenging and I always found that help was always there whether it was from my tutors or my fellow students. I found that I became close to the other people on my courses and we helped each other through different tasks and assignments and still to this day meet up for a night out.

I learnt that Universities have part time courses you can apply for to do on an evening just like Q.E. These courses are designed for people like myself who have commitments elsewhere but still want to educate themselves further. So after I received my qualifications I enrolled at Teesside University and I am now just waiting to start my degree.

After the experience I had at Q.E I know that I can expect something similar in the way that meeting people will be easy and the tutors and staff will help me to achieve my goals.
