

Spotlight on Media Studies

Books and other resources to help your understanding of the subject.

These titles are available to borrow from the Library, using your student ID card.

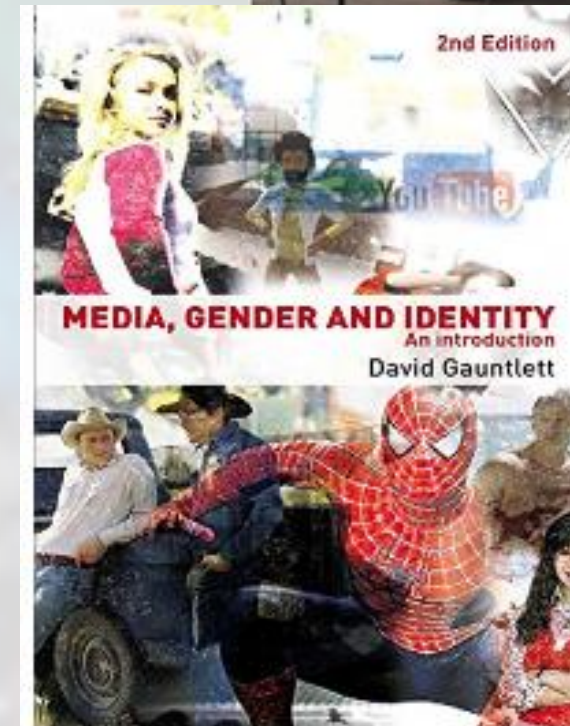

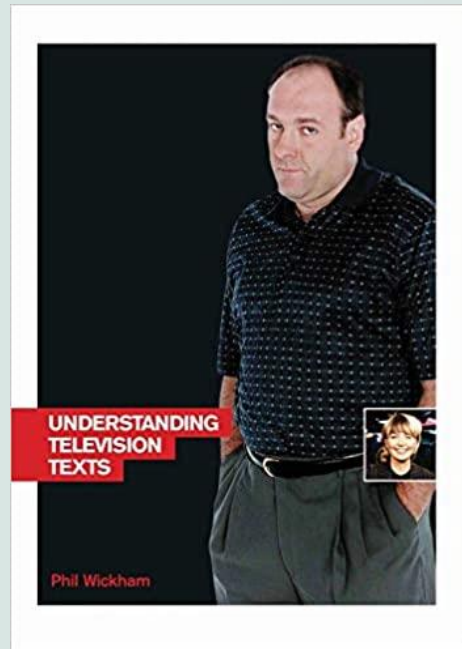

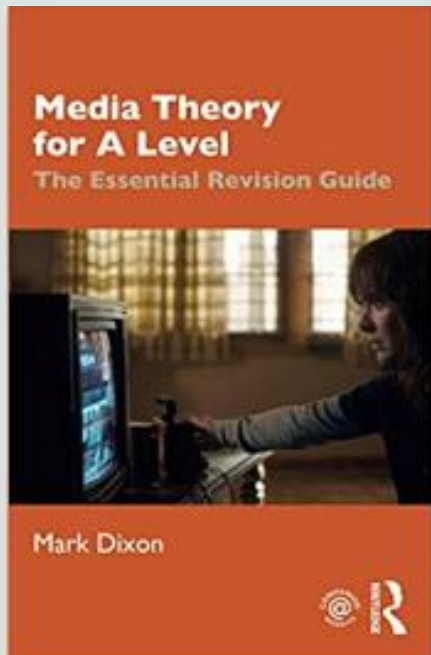

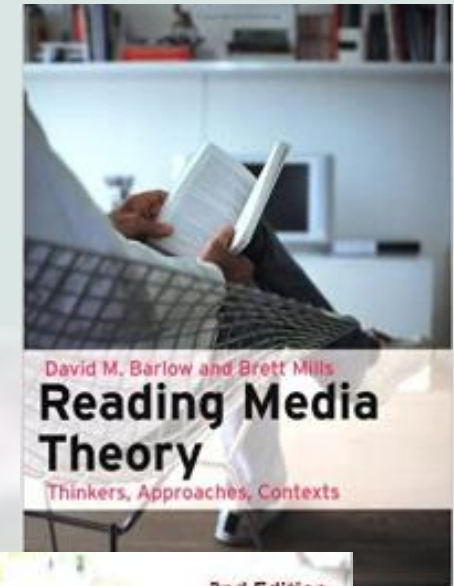

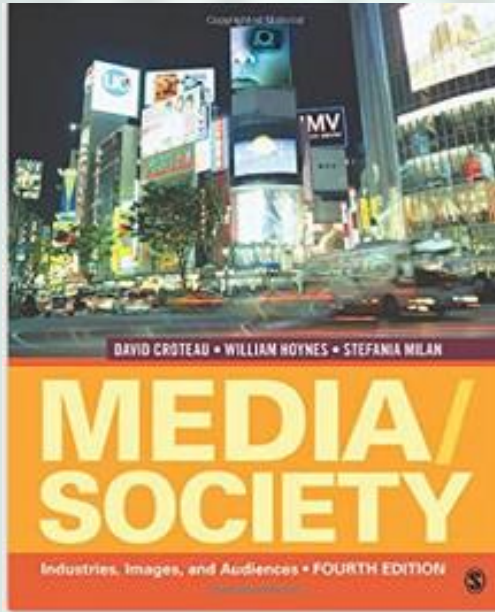

Spotlight on Media Studies

Guides to help you understand the subject specification

Spotlight on Media Studies

Titles to help you 'read around' the subject

Spotlight on Media Studies

'Media Magazine' is an important resource. Articles are aimed specifically at A-Level Media/ Film Studies students.

We hold the current issue in the library, plus back copies which you can borrow using your ID card.

We also provide online access to 'Media Magazine' within the college network.

Current Issue and Searchable Archives

The screenshot shows the website's navigation area. On the left is a thumbnail of the magazine cover with the title 'THE MAGAZINE FOR STUDENTS OF FILM AND MEDIA STUDIES' and 'MM MEDIA MAGAZINE'. To the right, there is a 'PDF Download full magazine' button. Below that is a horizontal menu with buttons for 'View Contents', 'Hyperlinks MM 72', 'Theory Drop', and 'Media Experts'. A note says 'Click any orange titles to view the article online'. At the bottom, there are two article titles: 'Making the Most of MM72' and 'A close-reading of Men's Health magazine from a female reader's perspective'.

Spotlight on Media Studies

Ideology Toolkit

Click the link on the left for a list of Ideologies and how each might influence the media language used.

Celebrity culture

Democracy

Individualism

Feminism

Globalisation

Changing attitudes towards sexuality

Spotlight on Media Studies

Component 1 section A: News.

Daily Mail

The Guardian

Click here for further useful links for the News component for Media Studies

Spotlight on Media Studies

Click here for articles and sites about the TV series 'Stranger Things'

'Stranger Things' nails the '80s — except for female journalists and small towns

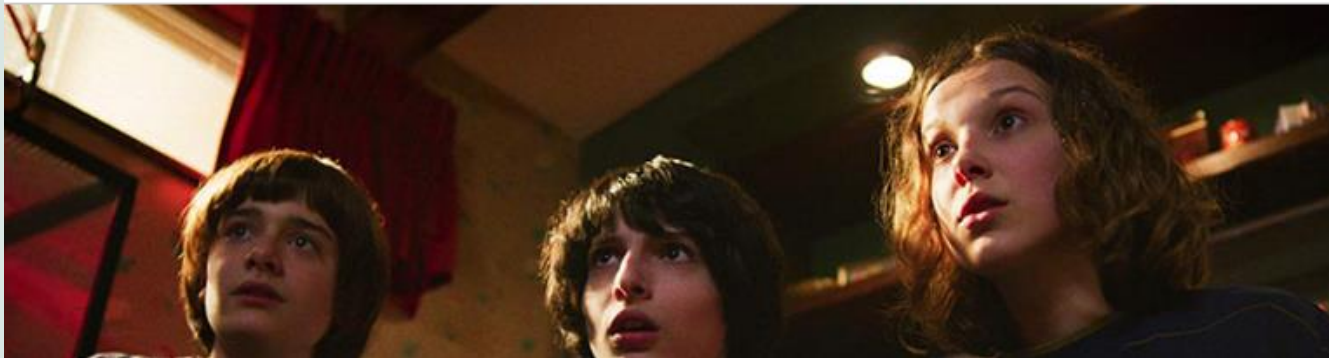

Natalia Dyer as Nancy Wheeler in season three of "Stranger Things." (Photo courtesy of Netflix)

July 12, 2019 | Kelly McBride

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 2019

'Stranger Things': How politics factor into pop culture nostalgia

Spotlight on Media Studies

Click here for articles and websites about the TV series 'Deutschland '83'

On the brink of nuclear war in 1983: TV series 'Deutschland 83'

The first German-language series to air on a US network, "Deutschland 83" features Cold War tensions through a spy's story. It has now been recognized as best drama by the International Emmy Awards.

Maria Schrader with co-star Jonas Nay in Deutschland 83